ABSTRACT

An improved structure of a spark plug is provided for improving the productivity and durability thereof. The spark plug has a ground electrode opposed to a center electrode to define a spark gap therebetween. The ground electrode is made of a noble metal such as an Ir alloy for increasing the heat and wear resistance and is joined directly to a metal shell of the spark plug by laser or arc welding.

09688588.112001